

DECLARATION OF FINANCIAL SPONSORSHIP

Students intending to enter the U.S. on an F-1 visa and/or attend Franklin University in F-1 immigration status must demonstrate that they have sufficient funding for at least the first year of their studies to be admitted as a potential F-1 student. OISP sets minimum financial requirements based on the University's tuition rates and estimated living expenses. Potential students who are unable to demonstrate sufficient funding are eligible to be admitted to the University but will not be eligible to apply for an F-1 visa or immigration status.

Financial Responsibility Statement

I understand the following information:

- Students are responsible for all expenses incurred at Franklin University.
- Students' ability to remain in legal F-1 status in the U.S. is dependent in part on the ability to pay educational expenses and maintain enrollment.
- Tuition and fees are subject to change without notice.
- F-1 students have limited work options in the United States and should expect to pay tuition and living expenses without working in the U.S.
