Franklin University Faculty and Staff Join OSCPAs 2007 Accounting for Kids Day

Columbus, Ohio – Franklin University, a leading educator of working adults in central Ohio, is proud to join the Ohio Society of CPAs in giving back to the community by helping students understand the fundamental concepts of accounting, economics and finance.

Through an interactive game based on the stock market, members of Franklin University's accounting faculty, as well as members of the University's staff, will work with elementary school children from the Columbus Africentric School to teach the importance of financial literacy.

During their visit to the Columbus Africentric School, Franklin faculty and staff provide students with the ability to experience the principles of economics and investing by purchasing, trading and cashing in their stocks. Skills introduced at this annual event help teach money management and skills that will last a lifetime

Through Accounting for Kids Day, Franklin's faculty and staff, along with CPAs and volunteers from around the state use their knowledge to support local schools, improve their communities and brighten the financial future of thousands of children.

Franklin's Accounting Program provides a strong foundation for your success in today's business world. Franklin's distinctive major allows you to focus on readiness for professional certifications, including the Certified Public Accountant (CPA). Develop a strong grasp of accounting principles, incorporating research and communication in the workplace. Adhere to a strong code of accounting ethics and professional responsibility.
